Brand Architecture Guide

Contents

Introduction

What our citizens read, hear about or experience shapes their perception of our City.

Whether you are creating a flier to promote an upcoming event, redesigning a webpage or developing an informational piece about a City program, you are influencing the impression our citizens and community members have about the City of Plano.

This is your guide for representing the City of Plano brand. In this guide, you'll find:

- a roadmap of our City brand architecture, an easy-to-understand framework that explains the relationship between your department, service, program, event or offering and our City brand

- guidance on how to visually represent your department, initiative and the City

Because all of the work we collectively produce builds the City of Plano brand, you are expected to follow these basic branding guidelines as you develop marketing and communications pieces. Be sure to provide a copy of this guide to any external designers or vendors you may work with.

If you have questions or a special case that is not answered in this guide, our team is always available to help you.

The City of Plano
Department of Communications & Community Outreach

Brand architecture is the visual and verbal framework that guides how we express and organize our brand. It provides clarity about our brand and helps standardize its application.

A strong brand helps us be clear about who we are, what we represent and what our constituents can expect when they encounter our City's people, programs, events or other offerings.

Our City of Plano logo is the single most powerful element of our identity. It succinctly identifies us. It represents our heritage and enduring commitment to our community. It embodies our values and portrays that to our constituents.

What is the City's brand architecture?

Our brand architecture is organized based on a clear hierarchy designed to avoid confusion with our audiences.

One City, one brand.
The City of Plano logo is our main identifying element and represents our master brand. It is the singular and foundational expression of our City's mission, brand positioning, and personality. It represents the face of our City and our brand at the highest level.

Departments are sub-brands.
Each department serves a unique purpose that directly supports and furthers the City's mission and positioning. Because sub-brands would not exist without the City, they must always be deliberately and consistently tied to the City master brand.

Initiatives are programs, events and other offerings the City provides.
Initiatives are specific ways we provide value to and serve our citizens and community. They should bolster the image and reputation of our master and sub-brands. Initiatives always need to be linked to the master and sub-brands to avoid confusion about their purpose and connection to the City.

What does brand architecture do for the City of Plano?

The City of Plano is active in many different areas of our community and citizens' lives. While each of these areas need to be appropriately recognized, it is also important to link each area to the City of Plano master brand. Our brand architecture is designed to:

- Clarify the structure and relationships of the City's different areas and offerings
- Clearly identify the relationship with the City
- Leverage and connect to the strengths and credibility of the City
- Reinforce a culture of pride in the City
- Create uniformity in how we represent ourselves
- Ensure simplicity and consistency in our communications

Visual Elements and Structure

Visual Elements Definitions

Graphic Element. A visual representation of a program, event, offering or other initiative used as a design component in materials or communications. Graphic elements should be created only for ongoing initiatives where a graphic element will demonstrably improve readability, enhance visual interest, and/or increase audience recognition.

Emblem. A unique visual identifier for a sub brand that is highly readable and recognizable.

Logo. The singular visual representation of the City and the foundation of the City brand with three versions: the City of Plano logo, the City of Plano "P," and the City of Plano logo with the "City of Excellence" tagline. The logo is not open to interpretation and should never be altered or recreated. Primary logo must appear on all materials and communications.

	Visual Element	Usage	Examples
Initiatives Programs, events and other offerings	Graphic Element or Treatment	Discretionary; will vary based on graphic design of materials or communications
Sub Brands Official subsidiaries and departments	Emblem or Sub Brand Identity	Should be included on all materials and communications to clarify the owner of the communication
Master Brand The official City brand of Plano	Primary Logo	Must appear on all materials and communications as a standalone or part of a departmental logo*

*see page 9 for usage guidelines

Logo and Tagline

The City of Plano logo is to be reproduced only in the configurations shown at the right. The City of Plano "P" may be used alone (without type) or with type and is considered the most commonly used version of the logo. When the design calls for it, the logo may also be used with the "City of Excellence" tagline.

See page 7 page for color specifications.

"City of Excellence" is Plano's official tagline. It may be used with the logo or separately. When used separately it may be reproduced in the colors shown at far right.

When using the tagline with the logo it must be reproduced as shown at right.

Need a logo file?
City of Plano employees can find logo files saved in various formats (eps, ai, jpeg) on the City's S-Drive. DO NOT piece the logo together. Use ONLY the provided logo files.

Logo Usage on Apparel (this shirt template applies to long sleeve collared shirts, polo style shirts, jackets, vests, cardigans, etc.)

It is encouraged to choose shirt colors close to approved primary and secondary color palettes. To properly embroider the logo a minimal thread count of 2000 is recommended. The logo should appear no larger than 2.75" wide on shirts in tone-on-tone thread colors – solid white, black, PMS 288 blue or the equivalent of 50% black (refer to the primary color palette on page 7). The full color City of Plano logo may be embroidered on a white shirt only. These guidelines must be provided to vendors prior to the creation of apparel.

Brand Identity for Publications

While layout and design will vary by project, it is important to always properly identify the City of Plano on all program, event and other publications. The following section provides guidelines with examples of proper logo usage in different publication formats. Examples on this page are for an 8.5" x 11" cover.

Always use the full-color Plano logo on white backgrounds	Department logos must always be placed on the left side to accommodate the name

A full-bleed photo may be used with the logo in white or tone-on-tone as long as the reversed logo reads well on the photo image. Do not place a white line around the outside of the logo.

Option using a white superimposed logo	Use colors from the color palette or screens of those colors, when possible

Never use the full-color Plano logo on top of photo images or on photos that make the the logo difficult to read.

The full-color Plano logo must always be easily read	A white or tone-on-tone logo can be difficult to read when improperly superimposed

Example of full-color logo usage on a non-bleed 6" x 8" postcard. The logo may appear on either the right or left side. The Department logo may appear only on the left.

| Sample 6" x 8" postcard. Always use the full-color logo on white backgrounds	Department logos must always be placed on the left side to accommodate the name

| Options showing a black and a grey superimposed logo	The Plano or Department logos should be placed on a photo where they read well

When featuring a graphic or department emblem on the cover, it is not necessary to attach the "P" logo with the type and tagline or department name. Instead, it is permissable to use just the "P" logo on the cover, as long as the formal logo including the type and tagline/department are included on the back cover.
